‘Monday Nite’ Footballers Get Ready For Mystical Season

By Jim ‘Granddad’ Nunnelly

No one knows what these Chiefs are going to do this season. Everyone is so righteously caught up in the training camp move to St. Joseph, as if where a team practices wins football games. Nah, it ain’t happening. It still counts what happens on the field, starting the second week in September. But, we Monday Niters are admittedly getting swooped up by the hype.

As the guys gather every Friday at a local club, the Chiefs and the 2010 season dominates the discussion. Of course, the oldies but goodies music helps them reminisce about the good old days, when the Chiefs really were Chiefs. . . not Chefs. But here is some of the pre-season chatter going on at 69th and Prospect.

TRIVIA QUESTION FOR THE WEEK: What teams played in the last Super Bowl?

1) Ed West is steadily teaching his fellow Monday Niters about technology. Armed with a i-phone, Ed is able to respond quickly to any football question that needs a quick answer. Where there once was arguments, now it is a simple... talk-into-the-phone and within a few seconds, there is a bona fide answer. He also got Carl to buy one of those nifty phones. And Ike even bought a laptop. So did Nunnelly. And Booker is actually going to Best Buy every week to look at one.

2) All the talk this week is about the upcoming weekend Hall of Fame game. You know the great Jerry Rice, Emmitt Smith and Floyd Little are being inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame. What else can be said about Jerry Rice that hasn’t been said? That is a heck of a thing.. that Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Carl Clark, Dr. Charles Allen, Lloyd Greenfield, and Ike Gardner have attended ceremonies there in years past. They recommend it for everyone.

By the way, Floyd Little wore number 44, just like Jim Brown at Syracuse. He was a Pro-Bowler for five years, while in Denver. Those were the days when the Broncos were the doormat of the AFC. He waited 30 years to get to the Hall of Fame. Good things do come to those who wait.

3) This week’s Hall of Fame game is between the Cincinnati Bengals and the Dallas Cowboys. You might just see Romo hook up with TO. Maybe. And for sure, you will see whether Ocho Cinco still has it. Probably not. That game is Sunday night.

4) Been up to St. Joseph to the Chiefs’ training camp? If you go, pay for your parking. Do not take the “free parking” option. You will walk for miles, getting to the state-of-the-art training facilities. You will be moved by the university’s football field, as well as the Chief’s new digs. Matter of fact, the Chiefs’ store is in a tent, designed for you to visit.... whether you want to or not. And given the heat, any additional walking is not good. Remember, take the paying parking. Or else you will be sorry.

ANSWER TO THE TRIVIA QUESTION: Well, we know it wasn’t the Chiefs. But, it was New Orleans Saints and the Indianapolis Colts. The Saints beat the Favre-led Vikings and the Colts beat the Jets to get to the big game. By the way, look for the Colts to make Peyton Manning the highest paid football player ever. He is one of the few quarterbacks who has started every game since joining the NFL. Big, big bucks are on the way, Peyton.
