Monday Nite Footballers Predictions

By Jim "Grand Dad" Nunnelly
Predicting Since 1970

Baltimore Ravens vs. Kansas City Chiefs

3:05 p.m. KCTV 5

Game Prediction (Wins In Parenthesis)

Charles Allen(3)
Chiefs by 10
High Priest seeks revenge

Paul Booker (3)
Chiefs by 7
Must stop Jamal, contain Ray

Carl Clark (3)
Chiefs by 10
Dante will bail us out

Bubba Cleaver (3)
Chiefs by 10
Chief of staff Priest will run a good meeting

Ike Gardner (2)
Chiefs by 2
If Trent And Warfield avoid poor performance

Lloyd Greenfield (3)
Chiefs by 7
And the beat goes on!

Ollie Hubbard (3)
Chiefs by 6
Butt-kicking No. 4

Jim Nunnelly (3)
Chiefs by 10
A Priest, A Barber A Holliday

Ed West (3)
Chiefs by 7
Dante runs his way into the Hall

Chatter, Conversation And Commentary

Ollie Hubbard is one of the more colorful Monday Niters. Having had a barber for a father and graduating from the old R.T. Coles school has allowed Ollie to rack up thousands of acquaintances and friends around Kansas City.

He reads the obituary religiously and attends as many funerals as he can. And his telephone rings night and day, every day. "Big Hub" flat out knows everybody. That knowledge distinguishes him as a top Lincoln university, alumnus. Ollie used to attend Homecoming festivities every year, for about 30 consecutive years, never missing and always first to arrive in Jefferson City.

As for his involvement in the Monday Nite Footballers, Ollie is most noted for his humorous, colorful comments, when predicting the Chiefs' football games. Freely borrowing from the "blues", Ollie warns the Chiefs not to "make their move too soon." He reminds the Chiefs of that day against the Green Bay Packers in the first Super Bowl.

Even though Otis Taylor caught an over-the-shoulder pass for a touchdown, the Chiefs still lost. Today, he cautiously says that the Chiefs are off to a good start. And that there are still 13 games remaining. Again, the Chiefs should not "make their move too soon."

Sports Editor Note: Either the waters have parted over the Missouri river, a once proud defense has risen from the dead or "the Priest" has walked on sacred turf. Whatever the case, a miracle has taken place. One that you haven't seen in decades. Our cantankerous friend, "Ike", has picked the Chiefs for the third consecutive week. Had he picked the Chiefs in the season opener, ol' Ike would be tied with the rest of the Chiefs' faithful Monday Niters. Of course, ol' Ike either doesn't believe in miracles or he simply has a problem with our boys at One Arrowhead Drive. Well, miracles do happen and you're looking at one right now. Way to go Ike. Don't lose your persona.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.