Merry Christmas From The Monday Niters

Monday Nite Footballers Predictions

By Jim "Grand Dad" Nunnelly
Predicting Since 1970

Kansas City Chiefs vs. Minnesota Vikings

4:00 p.m., KCTV-5

Predictions (Wins In Parenthesis)

Charles Allen (12) Chiefs by 14 The end zones are still in sight

Paul Booker (11) Chiefs by 10 Offense must score big!

Carl Clark (12) Chiefs by 7 I believe!

Bubba Cleaver (13) Chiefs by 14 Minna SO What!

Ike Gardner (11) Vikings by 7 Sometimey Minnesota vs. no defense Chiefs

Lloyd Greenfield (11) Chiefs by 7 Offense got game; defense got blame

Ollie Hubbard (12) Chiefs by 14 Rev. Smith hates my language!

Jim Nunnelly (12) Chiefs by 13 The rolling Chiefs will gather up some Moss

Ed West (12) Chiefs by 10 Chiefs will sink the Vikings' ship

Robert Allen Chiefs by 7 Priest Holmes, breaking records again!

Chatter, Conversation And Commentary

It is different, with the Chiefs, these days. Last year, at this time, the Chiefs were fighting, just to make .500 and trying to make the ever-elusive playoffs. Not so, this year. Already four games above .500. Already made the playoffs. Already won the AFC West Division. So, what's next? Well, Sunday, the Chiefs will move on to Minnesota and puruse homefield advantage. While the Chiefs struggle to keep opposing running backs from openly devouring us, the Chiefs are sporting a large-scale, league-leading offense. One that features an All-Pro running back, a late-rising quarterback, and a herd of unstoppable receivers. And while everybody knows the almost-unblemished offense, every one still thinks the run defense will eventually run us down. But, weak defense or not, tomorrow's game rest solely on how well the Chiefs are able to contain the Culpepper-Moss connection. This reliable duo will test the secondary, this time with short and long passes. Some will be bullet-accurate and others will be bobble-wobbly. Either way, look for Warfield, Wesley, and Woods to have their hands full. Moreover, the same defensive line that allowed Clinton Portis, through the cracks, will now have to rush and deck Culpepper. Just like covering Moss, sacking Culpepper will be a formidable task. Ike thinks Minnesota will win. He's back, y'all. All he needed was a resounding Chiefs' loss, and here he comes with that Chiefs-bashing stuff, again. Don't worry, the Chiefs will be watching Sunday, to see if they are closer to homefield advantage, throughout the playoffs. Happy Holidays!

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.