Monday Nite Footballers Predictions

By Jim "Grand Dad" Nunnelly

Kansas City Chiefs
Vs.
Seattle Seahawks

Channel 5 And KCFX 101.1 FM

Chatter, Conversation And Commentary

Now what?

That's the question the Chiefs are asking their season-long critics. Since falling needlessly to Chicago way back in mid-September, the Chiefs have been busily correcting the problems and now find themselves alone, atop the AFC West. Their destiny for post-season playoffs lies solely in their hands. Since beginning this topsy-turvy, roller coaster ride, here's what these amazing Chiefs have accomplished.

The critics said, "Throw more to the tight end." Tony Gonzalez has caught six touchdown passes during this recent winning streak. "Concrete feet" Grbac has to stop throwing game-losing interceptions. He stopped. They said further, "The Chiefs have to open up their offense." They've been throwing more on first down and even Derrick Alexander ran a 82 reverse to demolish Pittsburgh. It seems the Chiefs have solved every major problem put before them, including threatening to bench Vanover and Derrick Thomas for poor playing habits. So, the question is...now what?

Well, the last criticism is getting the kickoffs into their opponents' end zone. Those who go to the games see how the opposing teams get good field position because Stoyanovich just can't kick the ball very far. So, this week, ol' problem-solving Gunther went out and got a kicker who can supposedly accomplish this task. Again and again, the Chiefs have steadily addressed all these concerns. And because of that, the "weak-in-faith" have gradually returned to talking more favorably about these strong-willed Chiefs. And assuming the newly-acquired kicker can perform, the Chiefs are in good shape to complete the rags-to-riches odyssey. But the question still remains, now what?

Of course, accurate prognosticators like Charles Allen, Carl Clark, Lloyd Greenfield, Ed West, and Walt Livingston all say the Chiefs are ready to beat Seattle. Even Paul Booker and Ollie Hubbard, predictable critics of the Chiefs, have changed their minds and are now convinced the Chiefs deserve to be AFC West champions. But, ancient and obstinate Gardner still thinks the Chiefs will fold. Finding nothing to criticize, he says there will be a Y2K glitch and Seattle will topple Kansas City. Of course, Ike has lived a long time and I'm sure he has reason to know that the unexpected can be expected. While that's true, this is not the time or the place to apply that adage. When someone asks "now what," we should all answer in unison...The AFC Conference Championship.

Here's what we think:

PREDICTION

MEMBER	PREDICTION	COMMENT
Charles Allen	Chiefs by 14	Too close to turn loose.
Paul Booker	Chiefs by 3	I'm convinced.
Carl Clark	Chiefs by 7	Kingdome crowd out of it.
Ike Gardner	Seattle by 10	Y2K glitch.
Lloyd Greenfield	Chiefs by 5	Finally arrived.
Ollie Hubbard	Chiefs by 12	Hip, hip hooray
Walt Livingston	Chiefs by 3	The Hasty pressure.
Jim Nunnelly	Chiefs by 3	Two Derricks, Jerome Woods, James Hasty.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.