Monday Nite Footballers Predictions

Buffalo Bills
At
Kansas City Chiefs
12 Noon, KCMO TV 5

PAUL BOOKER

Quote Of The Week

"The Chiefs are woefully heartless and without any enthusiasm. Sunday will be another exercise in mediocre play and play calling. And, as if that's not enough, the "Flutie factor" cannot be under-estimated. Look for the locals to dip below .500"

Chatter, Conversation And Commentary

MANIC-DEPRESSIVE AND VICISSITUDINARY . . . Some days up and some days down. Some Sundays, the Chiefs play like Super Bowl contenders and some Sundays, they are embarrassing to the max. That kind of play leaves us wondering -- are the Chiefs the best of the worst or are they the worst of the best. The truth is that they are both. To make matters worse, the Chiefs usually play up, or down, according to their opponent. When they played the world champion St. Louis Rams, they play well. Then, where we as fans start "feeling it," doggone if they don't lose to lowly San Francisco. And, with six games remaining, we must be careful for the Chiefs could very well go 3-3 during the weakest part of the schedule. Point being that the Chiefs' 5-5 season is right on track. The record speaks volumes about how unpredictable and unreliable the Chiefs really are. Those fancy words in the headline, manic-depressive and vicissitudinary, are just ways of explaining the Chiefs duality. With that in mind, Paul Booker and Ed West believe that the "down" team will show up against Buffalo at Arrowhead. But, when stubborn and cantankerous Ike Gardner thinks the Chiefs will win, I want to believe him. After an erratic and topsy-turvy performance, the Chiefs will win by a squeaker.

POTPOURRI AND OTHER STUFF . . . Scott O. Wright, senior federal judge, surprised everybody by saying that more drug treatment should be available. Tracey Blaylock, the venerable deputy director of MOVE UP, also teaches night classes on substance abuse issues at Penn Valley Community college. Look for postage rates to increase to 34 cents after the holidays. Need holiday help in preparing meals, call Genuine Jean Anderson at (816) 931-2819 or Marcie Brown at (816) 432-6989. The Carter Trophy, an award for the high school Player of the Year, will be presented by Shawn Edwards Saturday morning on the Generation Rap show on KPRS 103.3.

Game Predictions (Victories In Parenthesis)

Charles Allen (5)	Chiefs by 10	Bad road trip, now at home
Paul Booker (6)	Buffalo by 3	The Flutie Factor
Carl Clark (5)	Chiefs by 1	Dummies are lucky
Ike Gardner (6)	Chiefs by .0003	One never knows which, if any, of the inept teams will show up
Lloyd Greenfield (6)	Chiefs by 3	Forgive them for they know not
Ollie Hubbard (7)	Chiefs by 2	Very reluctant and holding my breath
Jim Nunnelly (5)	Chiefs by 2	Living off next to nothing
Ed West (5)	Buffalo by 7	Chiefs will find a way -- to lose

(Ollie Hubbard and Paul Booker won last week)

Monday Nite Game
Washington Redskins at St. Louis Rams
KMBC TV 9, 8 p.m.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.