Monday Nite Footballers Predictions

By Jim "Grand Dad" Nunnelly Predicting Since 1970

Super Bowl XLI
Miami, Florida
Indianapolis Colts vs. Chicago Bears
5:25 p.m. KCTV 5

Charles Allen
Dungy by 7
That's the way it is!

Paul Booker
Dungy by 10
He's the oldest!

Carl Clark
Dungy by 10
I've always been a Colt!

Bubba Cleaver
Dungy by 12
Too much Dungy, period

Ike Gardner
Dungy by 7
Kansas City Connection!

Lloyd Greenfield
Dungy by 10
Dungy's awesome passing game!

Ollie Hubbard
Dungy by 8
Been at it longer!

Jim Nunnelly
Smith by 3
Smith, underdog wins this one!

Ed West
Dungy by 7
Experience wins out!

Donna Stewart (Publisher)
Indianapolis by 10
Colts are simply the better team

Tracy Allen (Sports Writer)
Indianapolis by 7
Peyton takes charge

Eric Wesson (Sports Guy)
Indianapolis by 17
Too much offense for Chicago

George Dunmore (By George)
Indianapolis by 3
Better quarterback, better kicker

Urban American Outdoors

Candice Price	Indianapolis by 14	Tony Dungy's time
Wayne Hubbard	Indianapolis by 7	It's Peyton Mannings year!

Chatter, Conversation And Commentary

Mary Lynn Clark said it best. This has been a relatively quiet Super Bowl. Not much said about it all. Is it because these two black coaches have broken through the "glass ceiling"?

Or is it because there just isn't much to talk about? Well, let's see if we can raise the "talk" bar. As you have noted, we predicted the "coaches" this week rather than the teams. That's because this is moment in history where everyone wins. Either way, a black coach wins Super Bowl XLI. Ok? And America wins because it can proudly say that a black coach has won and coached in a Super Bowl. And, last, Caucasian announcers will find it a bit awkward for either over-emphasizing or under-stating it. It will be interesting to see how they handle it.

But, back to Mary Lynn's comment about the "quietness". Now, from where I sit, every African American is talking about it, proudly. But the television sponsors are not. They ought to be talking about this like they talked about Elway, finally making it to his first Super Bowl. The way it appears is that Manning will replace Big Bad John as the "hype centerpiece". And that is an affront to all of us black people. This two-team black coaching thing is right up there with Jackie Robinson, breaking into baseball way back in the '40s. And it should be on every media outlet in the country. Foreign countries ought to know that America has made good on some of its promises (not all of them, just some).

But, reality tells me that the giant media outlets will treat this rather "low-key". Thus, I predict that very little will be said about all of this on Sunday and the days leading up to it. And quite frankly, I mad about it. Whatever you do, don't say that it doesn't matter. Sunday may be the last time, for a long time, when we all can sing "We Shall Overcome" with meaning and purpose. After all, to me and to you, Super Bowl Sunday will be a sacred part of Black History Month (lest we forget).

Let's all rejoice and be glad in it. Thanks, Mary Lynn for nudging us to speak up.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.